

Review of Constitutional Studies: Issue 30.1

The Centre is pleased to announce the publication of a new open issue of the Review of Constitutional Studies. Issue 30.1 contains articles by Claire Charters, Félix Mathieu & Dave Guénette, Keith Cherry, Sarah Burningham, Stéphanie Chouinard & Emmanuelle Richez, and Adriano Zambon. The full issue can be accessed via Heinonline (link below) and will be available open access one year after publication.

Full Issue: <https://access.heinonline.com/HOL/P?h=hein.journals/revicos30&i=1>

review

---

Table of Contents

|     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|-----|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1   | A Critical Assessment of the Crown's Claim to Sovereignty over Aotearoa/New Zealand under Tikanga Māori, British and International Law and its Consequences for Constitutional Transformation TodayClaire Charters |
| 37  | Démocraties multinationales et régimes de reconnaissance : une comparaison systématique de dix casDave Guénette &amp; Félix Mathieu                                                                                |
| 67  | Constitutional Pluralism and Shared Rule: Rethinking the Relationship between Indigenous Self-Government and the CharterKeith Cherry                                                                               |
| 99  | "The Saskatchewan Influence": Saskatchewan's Role in Canada's Ongoing Constitutional EvolutionSarah Burningham                                                                                                     |
| 123 | Les régimes linguistiques canadiens en matière d'affichage commercial : limites et opportunités constitutionnellesStéphanie Chouinard &amp; Emmanuelle Richez                                                      |
| 159 | Hart's View of Conceptual Analysis and the Paradigm Case of LawAdriano Zambon                                                                                                                                      |

