

Asymmetrical Federalism

Ronald L. Watts distinguishes 'political asymmetry,' which "is characteristic of all federations" and arises from the relative influence of different units within the federation, and 'constitutional asymmetry' which assigns differing powers to some unit or units. This form of asymmetry